VIRGINIA FRONTIER

[all dates and boundaries approximate]

1734 - Orange county created
1738 - Frederick and Augusta created; eastern boundary was Blue Ridge Mts., western boundary was Mississippi River, as far north as Pittsburg (Fort Pitt), southwest to NC. Augusta county created from Orange county
1748 - Dist. of Augusta reduced in size and Hampshire county
1753 was created
1770 - Botetourt county was formed from Augusta and included territory west of Alleghenies and south of Dist. of West Augusta
1770 - Out of this area of old Botetourt county came Fincastle, Montgomery, Washington, Greenbrier and Kentucky counties
1773 - Dist. of West Augusta overlapped Westmoreland Co., Pa.
1775 - Augusta and Botetourt counties extended through present West Virginia from Blue Ridge Mts. to the Ohio River
1776 - Old Fincastle county ended and Kentucky, Washington and Montgomery counties extended to Ohio River.
1776 - Virginia/Pennsylvania boundary dispute divided Dist. of West Augusta into Ohio, Monongalia and Yohogania counties
1777 - Greenbrier county formed from west part of Botetourt county and extended to the Ohio River. Many men from Greenbrier county went with George Rogers Clark to defend the Illinois country in 1779
1796 - Congress extended mail service from Wheeling, Va. to Limestone (Maysville) Ky. by way of Zanesville and Chillicothe over Zane's Trace.

THE WILDERNESS ROAD

Boone's Wilderness Trail was the most important migration trail for pioneers moving west between 1770 and 1830. Technically the road began at the Cumberland Gap and went through present day Kentucky, but the road down through the mountains of western Virginia was included as part of the Wilderness Road. This road through Virginia was also called the Great Valley Road, the Irish Road and the Pennsylvania Road. [See map on page 30].

The Wilderness Road was the most popular route of the 1770-1830 period. During the 1770s and 1780s the other main route west was the Ohio River. The river route was considered more dangerous by settlers because they had no boating experience. The river contained many tree stumps and was difficult to navigate and there were no settlements along the way in the very early days. By 1802 more settlements had been established on the Ohio River, but it wasn't until 1835 that it became heavily traveled.

Many secondary roads were used to reach the Wilderness Road. The Richmond Road and a road from North Carolina both connected with the Wilderness Road at Fort Chiswell where settlers could sell possessions they couldn't put on pack horses to cross the Cumberland Gap.

If your Martins were in Kentucky or Tennessee before 1830 they probably traveled on some portion of the Wilderness Road.

MISS. TERRITORY

On the same microfilm role with 1818 census schedules for Miss. is a 1792 Spanish census of Miss. Terr. "Patron del Districto de Natchez del Ano do 1792 - Dists. de Second y Sandy Creek." It was unclear to me what the columns meant but the first 3 columns were Blancos. There were two men named Tomas MARTIN and one named Juan MARTIN. Since there was also a Guilermo McINTOCHE, these men must be John, Thomas and Thomas MARTIN.

1818 Adams Co. Miss. Census

Copied from microfilm copy of the original schedule. Columns indicate: (1) white males over 21 (2) white males under 21 (3) white females over 21 (4) white females under 21 (5) number of white persons (6) number of free people of color (7) number of slaves (8) total number.
